Cane smut found here

Sugarcane smut, a dreaded sugar cane disease, capable of wiping out large acreages of sugarcane has been discovered in an experimental sugar cane plot near Clewiston.

The discovery of the fungus disease by Dr. E.H. Todd, vice president of research of United States Sugar Corporation, last Wednesday is the first documented presence in the continental United States. The disease has stunted sugar cane crops around the world and has destructive powers that range from minimal damage to total destruction of entire crop areas.

According to Ernest M. Collins, information specialist from the Florida Department of Agriculture, there is a great deal more unknown about sugar cane smut than there is known. The potential threat of this disease to the sugarcane industry of Florida is unknown at the present because the destructive powers are influenced by the resistance of sugarcane varieties and environmental factors.

The United States Department of Agriculture and the Florida Department of Agriculture are not making the discovery lightly, as a task force of technologists invaded Clewiston immediately following the discovery and identification of sugarcane smut by Dr. Todd.

Initially two stalks of smut bearing disease cane were found, identified and destroyed by burning. A closer investigation of the immediate area revealed additional smut discovery, however the full extent of infection will not be known until the entire 300,000 acres of sugarcane in south Florida has been individually investigated.

According to Collins, a 30-man task force will depart from Clewiston today (Wednesday) to conduct a field by field survey in an effort to determine an accurate evaluation of smut infection.

Initial meetings with representatives of the governmental agencies and members of the Florida Sugar Cane League reflect a desire to eradicate the disease. Sugarcane smut has been working its way towards the United States for many years and following its discovery in Jamaica several years ago, sugar cane researchers have been on the alert. The disease was first noted in Natal, South Africa in 1977. Since that time it has been reported in most of the sugar cane growing areas of Asia, Africa, Argentina, Hawaii, Fiji, Dominican Republic, Martinique, Bolivia, Guyana, Trinidad, and most recently in Jamaica. It is not known whether or not it occurs in Cuba.

The disease is capable of being blown for many miles in the wind and according to research reports, one smutted appendage is capable of producing five billion spores, which can be multiplied many fold.

Just how the disease bearing spores got to Clewiston is not known. According to information supplied by Dr. Todd, there is no association of the disease bearing cane variety in the experimental plot with Jamaica or any other off-shore areas. While the wind is being given the primary consideration as the bearer of the spore, importation of off-shore labor for cutting cane is not being overlooked, according to Collins.

Dalton Yancey, general manager of the Florida Sugar Cane League, agreed with Collins that the 8-9,000 Jamaican cane cutters should be considered as carriers, however he said growers took steps last year to assure that the cutters did not bring the disease with them. "I feel that it is highly improbable the infection came this way because of the precautionary methods used by the industry," Yancey said.

The infected experimental variety of cane was planted last December. The smut fungus actually turns the normally green "whips" at the top of the cane stalk to black, stunting the plant. Associated with the stunting of the growth is stalk sectional elongated splitting. The individual spores are capable of being transported by many means to another stalk where it multiplies many million fold until entire crops can be damaged or eliminated.

Researchers, according to Mr. Collins, have made progress in controlling sugarcane smut by cane breeding. Some varieties seem more susceptible to the disease than others.

Agriculture specialist working in the area, treat the disease much the same as medical doctors do highly contagious medical diseases.

Researchers going into the contaminated field remove their clothing after coming out, and are personally sprayed with disinfecting chemical to make absolutely sure the spore is not transported. The areas bearing contaminated sugar cane are posted and made off-limits for everyone, until such time the sugar cane is destroyed.

Following an evaluation of the disease in the Florida sugar cane industry, representatives of the Division of Plant Industry, the Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences, research and regulatory branches of the United States Department of Agriculture, the Florida Sugar Cane League, and other representatives of the industry

STAR WARS IT WASN'T but the sky over Pahokee was etched by the tracery of fireworks Tuesday night in celebration of the nation's Independence Day and more than a thousand people clapped their hands in a delighted counterpoint to the thump of mortars sending the pyrotechnics aloft. The annual event attracted Glades residents from all around Lake Okeechobee and entertained them for an hour with a spectacular display.

Minority engineering program approved

BELLE GLADE—Glades Central and Pahokee High Schools make up one of only three school systems in the state chosen by the Southeastern Consortium for Minorities in Engineering to receive grants for projects aimed at getting more minorities involved in the field of engineering.

Russell O. Brazzel, assistant principal at Glades Central, is the project director. Brazzel wrote the application for the first grant last year and was also project director then.

"It worked out real well last year," Brazzel said Monday. "That's why we were approved. I was at a meeting of the Consortium last week and our project was being presented as the outstanding program for the year."

"We were the only school in the seven state region with two representatives, Terry Lawson and Todd Derville, at the meeting," Brazzel said.

He said the program isn't remedial but is intended to enrich and is open to all students. He said some 400 students were involved at the two schools last year and the program cut across nearly every grade level at Pahokee High, although it was limited to sophomores at Glades Central.

"The idea," he went on, "isn't to turn out engineers but to make them aware of engineering possibilities. It opens up a lot of doors that weren't open before."

Brazzel said the program also helped students in other areas. "We're particularly pleased that the students taking part in the program scored better on their pupil progression tests."

Under the program, he said the students follow their normal course of study and at certain points, the faculty inserts what is called "learning modules" which contain information above and beyond the normal study load.

The Consortium is headquartered at Georgia Tech University but the program involving the local schools will be coordinated by an engineering professor from the University of Florida.

The funding allows the local school system to establish its own program to encourage minority students to become qualified for the study of engineering.

"More than 13,000 minority students from 115 secondary schools will participate in project classes," said Carolyn C. Chesnut, executive director of the Consortium. "Last year we were able to begin our program by supporting projects in 31 systems throughout the Southeast. This year, she said, 56 school systems will be involved."

Ms. Chesnut said that during 1979 and 1980, SECME will expand its program to include another 50 school systems within the eight southeastern states of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, Virginia, South Carolina and Tennessee.

"Detective Dave Chasteen and Sheriff Wille have been most helpful in this effort and good progress has been made," he went on. "At the request of the Extension office, Detective Chasteen has put together the enclosed two pages on what you can do to decrease the amount of crime in your agricultural operation."

Other articles in the newsletter concern pesticides which may be carcinogenic, celery variety trials, herbicide resistant weeds, the new national director of IR-4, an introduction of Dr. David J. Pizarra, a new plant pathologist at the Agricultural Research and Education Center here and a list of new publications available through the extension service.

Vegetable newsletter gets under way here

BELLE GLADE—The first copy of what will become a regularly published "Glades Vegetable Newsletter," aimed at Glades area farmers, was mailed last week by Kenneth Shuler, Palm Beach County Extension Agent for vegetables and general agriculture.

"Emphasis will be placed on crop production," Shuler said, "related events, research, people and available publications. Much of the information will be summarized from research and extension publications."

The first issue, dated June 29, headlined agricultural crime and a program instituted by Sheriff Richard Wille to combat it. Shuler enclosed a letter from Detective Dave Chasteen of the Sheriff's Agricultural Crime Unit which summarized the program and what farmers can do to prevent crime.

Garbage:

Service starts controversy

BELLE GLADE—Verbal bouquets and brickbats were being thrown the city Monday after two days of an experimental garbage collection system had been completed.

A group of Belle Glade housewives is expected to confront the city commission next Monday night with petitions protesting the semi-automated collection system.

On the other hand, all 13 of the persons, who are customers of the experimental service, contacted by The Belle Glade Herald in a random survey approved of the system and the men collecting the garbage were almost ecstatic with the curbside pickup.

Sanitation Department foreman Jessie Brown was following the crew on its pickup route Monday and he said he was more than happy with the system, which uses carts which are wheeled out to the curb by the homeowners.

"Oh, this is a lot better," chorused Frank Curry and Paul Seabrook, who were rolling the carts to the truck and dumping them before returning them to the curbside.

Brown said the experimental system is better than the back-door nippick because it's easier on the men and they avoid problems such as bad dogs. "Almost everyone has a dog now," he said, "and I've seen some people watch through a window when their dog bit one of the men and then laugh about it."

He said the main thing he was emphasizing with the residents was the need for rolling the carts back into their yards after the pickup and he said there had been lit-

THE CONTROVERSIAL CARTS being used by the City of Belle Glade on an experimental basis to collect garbage apparently satisfy the men using them (Paul Seabrook, and Frank Curry) and the customers but are being protested by a group of local housewives.

Smut life cycle is given

Feeling that the dreaded sugarcane smut disease would eventually make its way into Florida, in February of this year the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services released the following information in Plant Pathology Circular No. 185.

SUGARCANE SMUT

Sugarcane smut, caused by Ustilago scitamineae Syd., was first noted in Natal, South Africa, in 1877. It has since been reported in most of the sugarcane-growing countries in Asia and Africa in the Eastern hemisphere. The disease then appeared in Argentina in 1940, followed by reports from Hawaii, Fiji, Dominican Republic, Martinique, Brazil, Bolivia, Guyana and most recently in Jamaica. With Jamaica only 100 miles from Cuba, and Cuba just about 90 miles from Florida, the fear of this serious disease on the mainland of the United States is virtually assured.

Sugarcane smut is a disease of major importance in sugar-producing countries of the world. Losses can range from very minor to complete loss. Smut-infested plants result not only in fewer canes but also in reduced sugar content. Sugarcane plants under stress show higher disease incidence. Losses due to smut are greater with primary infection vs secondary infection, early season infection vs late season infection, and with ratoon crops vs plant crops.

Infection of planted cuttings occurs by chlamydospores present in the soil or in irrigation water and by diseased planting stock. Standing cane becomes infected mainly in the buds by wind-borne spores, which are produced from smutted appendages (diseased terminal shoots of sugarcane) that are enclosed in a thin, silvery membranous sheath making up the sorus. The spore-producing structure of the fungus. As the sheath ruptures, the spores appearing like a thick layer of black soot fall to the soil surface and are also dispersed by wind and rain as well as by man to adjacent plants and fields of sugarcane. One smutted appendage is estimated to produce 5 billion spores. A schematic illustration of the disease is shown as is the life cycle of sugarcane smut. Disease severity depends on the environmental conditions and the resistance of the sugarcane varieties grown.

More than one race of the smut fungus was recently found in Taiwan and Hawaii attacking varieties resistant to the established race. Though most cane varieties grown in the United States are susceptible, many varieties and selected clones are being tested in Jamaica for smut resistance, since this area will most likely be the source of inoculum for introduction into the USA. A smut spore-laden tropical storm entering the Gulf of Mexico could inoculate all the U.S. sugarcane production areas of Florida, Louisiana and Texas.

SYMPTOMS. Infected plants are spindly with small narrow leaves and extended internodes, and exhibit the characteristic long (up to several feet), whip-like, usually curved, silver-gray to blackened pencil-thick appendage at the apex of the affected stalk. Affected clumps of sugarcane produce an excess of tillers.

CONTROL. The recommended measure of control sugarcane smut are as follows: 1) careful roguing of diseased shoots, or stools; 2) selecting healthy planting material; 3) disinfecting cuttings with Dithane or other suitable fungicides and/or disinfecting with hot water treatment at 52 C for 18 minutes prior to planting; 4) avoiding the ratooning of affected cane fields; 5) establishing a crop rotation with non-susceptible crops; and 6) planting resistant varieties. Hawaii, following the outbreak of sugarcane smut, required that seed be grown in a disease-free area, treated with hot water, disinfested with a fungicide, and shipped in containers treated with Lysol solution. A recent outbreak of sugarcane smut in a 40-acre field in Guyana was treated with an aerial application of Paraquat, a contact herbicide, to facilitate burning of the affected cane. The stubble was plowed under, and the field put under flood fallow. Port of entry inspections can also aid as an effective barrier against introduction of sugarcane smut.

Life cycle of Ustilago scitamineae Syd., the cause of sugarcane smut.

SWCD deadline extended

Due to recent changes in Florida, individuals wishing to qualify for one of Florida's 300 soil and water conservation district (SWCD) seats have an extension until July 14, 1978 to submit a petition with 25 signatures to their local supervisor of elections. The extension was granted as part of legislation to bring the non-partisan supervisor's more in line with Florida's state-wide election procedures.

There are three (3) seats up for election this year on the Palm Beach-Broward Soil & Water Conservation District Board. Supervisors seeking re-election are Fred John, Belle Glade; Cathy Horton, Boynton Beach; and William Bowman, Jr., Delray Beach.

Raulerson's changes hands

BELLE GLADE—Mrs. T.W. Whatley sold Raulerson's Office Supply Friday, more than 20 years after her daughter, a horse and "a lot of friends" influenced her decision to hang onto the then-young and struggling company following her first husband's death. Mrs. Whatley said she turned over the keys to the office supply business to James and Janet Jacks Friday. "and I'm going to a horse show with my daughter." She said she would be available for a few days for any advice needed by the new owners but she is now officially retired.

Mrs. Whatley said she moved to Belle Glade and took over ownership of the business with her first husband, Fred Raulerson, in 1955, "but we only had the store a year before we found Mr. Raulerson had lung cancer."

When her husband died, Mrs. Whatley said she was seriously considering selling the store and returning to West Palm Beach but a curious set of circumstances changed her mind.

She said she and her husband had just bought their then-teenaged daughter, Mary Lou Raulerson, now a school teacher in Pahokee, a five-gated show horse named King.

She said she had been thinking about returning to the coast but she had been unable to find a place to keep the horse, she couldn't afford to rent a stable and she didn't want to take the horse away from her daughter so shortly after her father's death.

Then too, she said she quickly found how many friends she and her husband had made in the community.

"We only paid $2,000 for the business," Mrs. Whatley said Monday, "and we couldn't even pay that amount off right away. We had to pay $50 a month until the business was paid for."

Left alone with her daughter, a new business and no credit, Mrs. Whatley said friends began gathering around her and, with a lot of help from a lot of those friends, she was able to make a go of it.

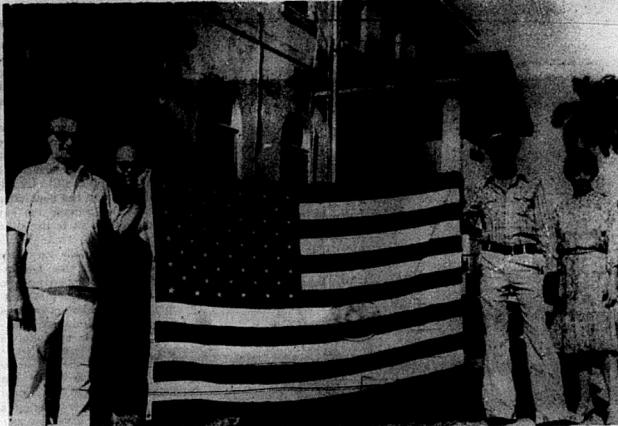

With the exception of two brief intervals, Mrs. Whatley has managed the office supply business single handedly since her first husband's death.

The two interludes came when she married her second husband, T. Worth Whatley of Alabama and again when J. Ewin Whatley, her second husband's brother, came to Belle Glade following her second husband's death.

It was shortly after the arrival of her brother-in-law that Raulerson's moved into its present quarters. That was 13 years ago.

Mrs. Whatley said her plans for the immediate future include traveling with her daughter to Louisville, Ky., where Miss Raulerson has entered her filly.

"After that," she said, "I'll probably go on to Ohio and maybe to the Ozarks but then I'm coming home. I'm not leaving Belle Glade because this is home to me."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY was the theme Wednesday at the Community Mental Health Center Glades Branch as the center celebrated its fifth anniversary. And what better gift to give the center in recognition of five years of service, when the anniversary falls on the day after Independence Day than a flag? Presenting the flag on behalf of Belle Glade Elks Lodge 1716 were Exalted Ruler Don Williams and Luis Capote, chairman of the Americanism Committee (left at each end of the flag). Accepting on behalf of the center were drug counselor Byron Smith and Center Director Jean Cogar.

Overdue books

By Phyllis Lilley
Acting Librarian

BELLE GLADE—We would like to remind the public that for the month of July you can bring back all overdue books to the library and there will be no fines and no questions asked.

In reference to the article in last week's Belle Glade Herald, which helped us to kick off our campaign to get books returned we would like to add that in addition to the large number of Arco Civil Service test books we are missing, which does include the Police Officer, we have great losses in another area. Believe it or not—we are missing 102 religious books—18 of which are versions of the Bible.

Please if you have any overdue books or records from the library bring them back. If you prefer the books can be left in the book drop located at the back of the library and it is open 24 hours.

Final plans announced

BELLE GLADE—Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Franklin of Belle Glade, announced this week the final wedding plans of their daughter, Gail Ann, to Eddie Bernard Clayton.

The wedding will take place, Sat. July 8 at 6 p.m. at the Glorious Community Holiness Church of Jesus and the Apostolic Faith in Belle Glade.

A reception will follow at the Lakeshore Civic Center.

All friends, relatives of the couple are cordially invited to attend.

Candidate visits Lions Club

BELLE GLADE — State representative Reid Moore, a Republican seeking Paul Roger's seat, spoke at the Lions club weekly meeting last Wednesday.

"Politics is power," he said upon arriving, "and every time I speed down that dangerous State Road 80 I wonder why the people that can do something about it don't". According to him nothing has been done about that road because the key people do not see fit to use their power to restore it.

Moore spoke briefly on some issues concerning the Glades. Because of its importance to production, Moore feels that back-pumping is very important and as a member of the agriculture committee. He stands on agriculture's side.

He then changed the subject to speak on a bill passed by the legislature stating that any female between certain ages entering a hospital wishing to have a cancer test should have one free of charge by a staff doctor or private physician.

Ben Clarke, Glades General Hospital's administrator told Moore that laws such as this one does not help a hospital. "We are mandated to do it but we are not funded for it," Clarke said.

Moore said that it was a very close and hotly debated bill and that the legislature had to resolve it as best as possible. They felt that the untimely savings will be far better if cancer was found and treated at an early stage.

"Some women," he said, "don't even take the test because they are afraid they might have it."

On education, Moore said that after 12 years if a student cannot pass a test he cannot function in society. Our education system was built on a test system, he said and students are going to be tested so will the teachers.

Obituary

JIMMY SCHOEPEL

Jimmy Schoepel, 41, former resident of Pahokee, residing in Miami for the last 17 years died Friday in Miami.

He was a member of the First Baptist Church of Greater Miami and was employed with Dr. Arnold of Miami.

Schoepel was a graduate of Pahokee High School and the University of Miami. He attended Marion Military Academy in Alabama and Emory University in Atlanta.

Survivors include his wife, Janice Steele-Schoepel, his mother Mildred Smith, of Gainesville, a sister Mrs. Gay Moore of Gainesville, two nephews Dan Moore and John Stewart and two nieces Lynn Moore and Melynda Stewart.

A repose was held at Lithgow in North Miami and the services were held at 10 p.m. Saturday. Grave-side services were Sat. at 4 p.m. in Fort Mayaca.

Attitude... OF PRAYER

"Give ear to my words, O Lord, consider my meditation. Harken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God: for unto thee will I pray."

Psalms 5:1-2

God hears and answers prayers, but not everyone knows how to pray. Even the Lord's disciples asked that he teach them how to pray.

Attitude of the individual is important in prayer. Prayer is the opportunity that we have to tell God of our blessings and give thanks. It is an opportunity to petition for help, but above all, our hearts should be willing that God's will be done.

Prayer should be offered individually and in groups.

ATTEND CHURCH AND
PRAY WITH OTHERS

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long prosper; and the freedom which only He can give will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, we should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

the problem with that during the first two days, Monday and last Thursday.

An unexpected problem Brown has had, however, is the number of people who have been asking him when they could expect to get their carts.

"People have been calling me all weekend and at night wanting their carts," Brown said, "and I have to tell them they're just on an experimental basis. I don't have anything to do with it (distributing the carts) anyway so I tell them they'll have to talk to them (higher ranking city officials)."

"I even had one man who wanted to know how much the carts cost because he wanted to go ahead and buy one," he said, "but I had to tell him the city wasn't selling them and he'd get one anyway if it works out."

Another advantage Brown sees is that the new system should cut down the turnover rate in the Sanitation Department. "They (city officials) don't have to go downtown and find someone to tote garbage," he said, "I've always had to do it. I don't mind but it should be easier now."

Sanitation Director Roy Poling said Thursday, after the crew had completed its first day with the new carts, "The response has been unbelievable. We started distributing the carts Monday and by that afternoon some people had already started using them."

Poling said at that time everybody he had talked to on the 600-home experimental route had been satisfied with the carts.

"If they'll come around back and pick it up," quipped Roscoe Legg of 1180 Stillwell Rd., "it'd be okay. No, seriously, it'll work out. Those of us who are used to having (garbage) picked up from the back yard will take a little getting used to but it'll work out. This is something that's being done in most other towns."

"I'm one who's satisfied," said Mrs. George C. Phillips of Gladeview Trailer Park. "So far, it's worked out fine and there doesn't seem to be any problem. Everybody I've talked to seems to like it pretty much."

"So far, so good," Mrs. Fred Youchock, also of Gladeview, said. "It's easy to handle and they hold enough garbage so there's no problem I know of."

Amos Oswald of 1317 SW Ave. C commented that, "so far, it looks all right to me. Twice now it's been picked up and I don't think it'll be any trouble." He said that within an hour of the time the garbage was picked up Monday, there were, "only about four" people who hadn't taken their carts back into their yard.

One thing which was thought might be a problem was answered by Jessie Brown, when he said the crew members have instructions to go to the back yard at homes of people who can't move the garbage to curbside.

Brown said he'd been asked by one elderly woman who hadn't left her house in more than 30 years how he expected her to move the cart to the curb and he told her there was no problem, that the men on the garbage truck would do it for her.

But if the crew members and the people surveyed by The Herald were satisfied with the system, there is a group of housewives and some men, who aren't.

Charles Ward, owner of Food Center, and his brother, Bert Ward of 900 NE Third St., said their wives are having people sign petitions protesting the system.

"That is one group of mad housewives," Charles Ward said. "I guess you can say I'm against it too. This is something Belle Glade doesn't need. It's ugly and I can't see any advantages to it. I can see all kinds of disadvantages but no advantages."

Ward said his wife had been told by a Pahokee woman, "You don't know what you're getting in to." He said the woman told of how the carts in Pahokee are turned over by dogs and the wind, how hard the carts are to roll and how some of the carts are already breaking there.

"Women won't be able to roll the carts," he said, "so it's going to fall back on us men to do it. And people won't move the carts to their back yards. They just won't do it."

"This (back yard pickup) is one thing I've always thought Belle Glade had on other cities," he said, "and I don't think we need to change."

GCI Jaycees win national award

BELLE GLADE—One national and two state awards were presented recently to members of the Glades Correctional Institution Jaycee Club by state Jaycee officials.

The GCI Jaycees won first place nationally for a project tied into the Jerry Lewis Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy last Labor Day. The club also won a first place in state competition for the project as well as a state first place for the GCI Jaycee Journal, the club's newsletter.

In connection with the muscular dystrophy drive, the club held a Measles Man on the Compound contest. This was the project which won the state and national awards. The award was made in the Health & Safety Division.

As chairman of both projects and editor of the newsletter, Bob Casterline received smaller, individual awards. He cited former Journal editors Mark Axel and Michael Egan and former First Vice President Robert Jensen for help in winning the two awards.

The awards were presented during the club's regular meeting June 25 by Jaycee District 16 President Jim Detzel, District Vice President Ken Scholl and District Secretary-Treasurer Mike Rose, who visited the prison for the presentation.

2 arrested for drugs

BELLE GLADE—Two Naples men were arrested by City Police Monday after being alerted by a South Bay pharmacy of a possible forged prescription.

Police Detective Curtis Stambaugh said Patrolmen Dan Crist and Michael Maushardt arrested Russell G. Platt, 41, and Darrell Steven Henry, 28, both of Naples, after their automobile was described over the radio.

Stambaugh said a pillbox containing 11 dilaudid tablets was found on Platt and a paper bag containing three syringes was found in Henry's back pocket. Stambaugh said two completed forged prescriptions for dilaudid were also found on Henry, along with several prescription blanks.

The police were alerted by Gene Farley of Wallis Pharmacy in South Bay, where a forged prescription for 30 dilaudid tablets was filled. As of Monday afternoon, Stambaugh said only 11 had been found.

Platt was charged with possession of a controlled substance and placed $1,500 bond. Henry was charged with possession of forged prescriptions and narcotics paraphernalia. Bond was set at $1,500.

Dilaudid, according to Stambaugh, is an opium derivative used widely as a substitute for heroin.

Woman charged with shooting

BELLE GLADE—A local woman was being held under $10,000 bond Tuesday after being arrested for shooting her husband, who was in critical condition at St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach.

Napoleon Reynolds Jr., 36, of 507 SW Fifth St. Apt. 9 was shot once following a domestic argument with his wife, Lucy Reynolds, 24, of the same address, according to City Police Detective J.R. Eberle.

Eberle said three shots were fired in the incident, with one passing through Reynolds' right arm and entering the right side of his chest. Eberle said the other two shots missed.

Mrs. Reynolds fled the apartment, according to the detective, and Reynolds recovered enough from the initial shock of his wound to pick himself up from the floor and drive to Glades General Hospital where he collapsed on the emergency room floor.

Eberle said the victim was treated by Drs. Roy Brown and Rafael Molina until his condition was stabilized. He was then transported to St. Mary's on the Sheriff's helicopter. Eberle said he had been in touch with St. Mary's Tuesday morning and Reynolds was listed in critical condition and hadn't been operated on. He said

Reynolds' right lung had collapsed and the X-ray showed the bullet lodged near the 10th vertebrae.

When Patrolman David Tatum and Steve Haller arrived at the Reynolds' apartment, Mrs. Reynolds came out of the door of the adjoining apartment and handed Tatum a pistol. She was taken into custody and charged with attempted second degree murder.

Rainfall is short

BELLE GLADE—There was a shortage of rain in June, according to Dr. Robert Allen of the Agricultural Research and Education Center, but heavy rains in May still have given 1978 an excess of precipitation compared with earlier years.

Allen said a total of 6.42 inches of rain fell in June, a 2.74 inch deficit compared to the 9.21 53 year average. A total of 25.3 inches has fallen for the year compared to 23.61 inches for a 54 year average recorded at the station.

The 1.69 inch excess for the year is the result of 11.42 inches which fell in May. The 53 average year for May was 4.82 inches.

try will jointly make recommendations for a program of eradication. Meanwhile, according to Collins, every bit of research information that has been compiled in off-shore sugar cane producing nations will be researched and information and progress made there will be applied to the Florida situation. At the same time "Smut" infestation to other crops in our country such as corn and wheat will be studied and attempts made to associate the present infestation and/or eradication.

Yancey expressed a personal opinion that he did not feel the disease was widely spread because growers are continually inspecting their crops for pests and diseases. The infected plants discovered last Wednesday were first-generation plants grown of American stock. Yancey said that the Florida sugar cane crop consist of a dozen or more major varieties of sugar cane plants and hopefully the majority of them will prove to be smut-resistant. "Hawaii has been able to live with the sugarcane smut disease and I see no reason why we can't", Yancey said.

Yancey and his staff are cooperating with the various government officials and the Florida Sugar Cane League office in Clewiston is being used as headquarters for the "research" operation.

In the next few weeks, the area will be filled with technologist and researchers working in the sugar industry. Many strangers will be seen walking in and out of virtually every sugar plot in south Florida, and we are asking for the support and cooperation of the industry and growers, Collins said. The men will have positive identification and will readily identify themselves, if need be, he continued.

Related stories of a public hearing in Belle Glade on July 7th and technical information of sugar cane will be found elsewhere in this issue.

GCI announces SEP

BELLE GLADE—A program designed to train Glades Correctional Institution staff members to recognize needs, pains and difficulties of confined persons in order to serve as co-therapists is being instituted at Glades Correctional Institution according to Do You Know, a newsletter published at the prison.

The newsletter quoted Dr. Fran-ck Simon, GCI psychologist, as saying the Selected Experimental Program (SEP) has three primary objectives:

- To train the staff in the areas of mental health.
- Identify various needs of the inmate population and explore possible means to adequately meet those needs.
- Provide and maintain harmonious rapport between inmates, staff and the community and prepare inmates for a healthy return to society.

Simon said the program candidates will be trained in techniques of problem-solving, crisis intervention and administering, scoring and interpreting of routine and complex psychological examinations.

Training will also be offered in diagnostic formulations and preparation of clinical reports and treatment plans.

Lectures in special fields, including psychoanalysis, metaphysics, psychodynamics, personality development, behavior modification and prison mental health will be offered. A Spanish language section will be available for inmates with Latin background.

JESSIE HAYNES was named Athlete of the Year last week by the Florida Athletic Coaches Association for his prowess c.a. the Glades Central basketball team. Haynes and Coach Jay Seider show off the plaque delivered last Thursday. The 6'4" player scored an average 29.3 points per game and was named to the All Conference and All Area basketball teams.

22 'graduate' at GCI

BELLE GLADE—A total of 22 inmates received GED (General Education Diploma) certificates last month at Glades Correctional Institution, representing one of the largest single "graduating" classes at the prison as well as one of the highest percentages of graduates from a single testing group.

The GED, the equivalent of a high school diploma, can be earned through GCI's education department's learning laboratory program. Inmates work individually at their own pace, with initial testing to provide information on areas that need strengthening.

Pahokee softball tournament winds up Sunday for 14 teams

PAHOKEE - The Pahokee Men's Softball league hosted an multi-city softball tournament this past weekend at the city softball park. The tournament, which was held from June 29 until July 2, proved to be a great success as teams and families came from around the state, to enjoy the excitement and festivities.

Thirteen teams participated in the tournament. They were: Woody's Ranch, Mace Sod, Sunshine Sod, Hilyer and Lee, Foodway, Hatton Brothers, H&L Equipment, Davis Brothers, A&J All-stars, Avon Park Merchants, Fulford, Carter Chevrolet, and Union 78.

The tournament was played on an elimination basis, with all teams participating. After eliminating all but four teams, trophy winners were selected by another elimination. Trophies were awarded on Sunday afternoon after the winners had been chosen. First place trophy went to Union-78 of Pahokee, second place to Avon Park Merchants, third place to Fulford of Okeechobee, and fourth place to Carter Chevrolet of Pahokee.

Trophies were also awarded to the player with the highest batting average throughout the tournament and to the person with the most homerun hits. Both of these trophies were awarded to Ronnie White of Fulford, who had a batting average of .773 and 10 homerun hits.

Linda Zawadski graduates

TAMPA-Linda C. Zawadski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Zawadski of 1038 Wedgworth Rd. in Belle Glade, graduated cum laude from the University of South Florida on June 11.

Miss Zawadski, a 1975 graduate of Glades Central High School, received a bachelor's degree in political science. During her years at USF she has been resident assistant at Mu Hall, a member of the homecoming committee and a member of the senior yearbook staff. She was named to the dean's list several times, was a member of the President's Honor Convocation for 1976-77, was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, a national leadership honor society and a member of Pi Sigma Alpha, a political science honor society.

She is now attending the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg for master's work in counseling psychology.

POURING ON THE SPEED, Sunshine Sod's Denny Baughman was beat by the ball. Sunshine Sod's 8-4 loss to Fulford was one of many games played in the local softball tournament held in Pahokee Thursday through Sunday.

Good reading skills are vital in business and education

National Learning
Systems, Inc.

Presents:

Speedreading and Comprehensive Skills
Courses IN THE GLADES

Introductory Special:
Two Enrollments for the Price of One!*

*National Learning System's standard prices are 25% to 40% less than the cost of similar programs. To introduce this new program of speedreading instruction, it is being offered at the introductory price of two enrollments for the price of one. The second person enrolling pays only a materials cost of thirty dollars. This is valid for the first thirty double enrollments.

You have within you the potential to read three to thirty times faster than you presently read with comprehension that is as good, if not better, than your present comprehension rate.

Speedreading is not only possible, the ability is fairly widespread. In the past thirty-five years literally hundreds of thousands of people have been taught one of three basic speedreading techniques. Four of our last five Presidents have been trained speedreaders and scores of Congressmen, Senators and Cabinet officials could never complete their heavy workloads without daily use of their speedreading training. Thousands of educators and leaders in business and the professions testify to the value of the daily use of their speedreading training. And, increasingly, students at the college and high school levels are finding that speedreading is a highly valuable and, in many cases, an essential addition to their study skills.

For more information, please attend one of these three meetings at the Day's Inn in South Bay:

Fri., July 7 8:00 p.m.

Sat., July 8 4:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m.

Sun., July 9 4:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m.

Why Speedreading?

Answers from an educator and businessman

"In far too many cases, students' study skills - particularly their reading skills - are just not good enough to meet the demands of a good university curriculum."

DR. W.R. JOHNSON, E.D.D.,
EDUCATOR

"Reading is the foundation of all education and, as a professional educator, I am constantly aware of the importance of good reading skills in my students. A recent government report shows that over 60% of students entering college fail to complete the program and do not receive their degree. In far too many cases, students' study skills - particularly their reading skills - are just not good enough to meet the demands of a good university curriculum. One prominent educator has predicted that, in the near future, students will be required to complete a professional speedreading program before admission to many universities.

The National Learning Systems program, Speedreading and Comprehension Skills has curriculum materials for students at the Junior High School and Middle School levels and emphasizes improvement in study skills as well as speedreading. I also appreciate the small class size and low ratio of students per teacher which allows individual attention to each student. I enthusiastically recommend this program to any parent who is interested in his child's total intellectual development."

"I have come to believe that speedreading is one of the best time management tools ever devised."

MICHAEL W. WOOD
BUSINESS EXECUTIVE

"Good reading skills are tremendously important to any business leader or professional person. Professional leaders must digest magazines and newspapers of general interest in addition to the journals and technical materials necessary to keep abreast of developments in his field of special competence. I personally enjoy reading for pleasure so that a good percentage of each day is spent on reading. Speedreading enables me to read with good comprehension at seven or eight times my previous speed.

The National Learning Systems Speedreading program offers low cost, individually paced progress, and flexibility of scheduling. All of these features are desirable from a businessman's point of view. I enthusiastically recommend this program to any business or professional person."

The National Learning Systems program, Speedreading and Comprehension Skills has the following outstanding features:

1. Small classes - 10/1 student-teacher ratio.
2. Individualized instruction - progress at your own speed.
3. Certified teachers, professionally trained.
4. Convenient and flexible scheduling.
5. Multi-media student kit with tape cassettes for home study.
6. Program material on study skills and time organization.
7. Unlimited free review and re-see classes.
8. Moderate cost - 25%-40% less than similar courses.

Dean's List

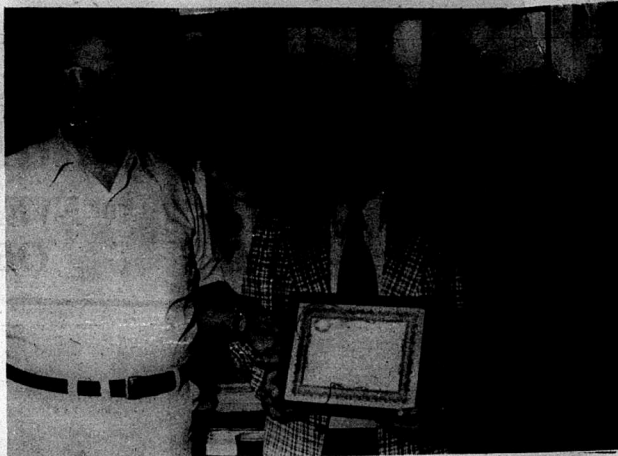

PAHOKEE-Janet L. Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Walker of 390 North Juniper Ave., Pahokee, has been named to the Dean's List of Florida Southern College in Lakeland. The recognition, which she has received several times, means that Janet has completed at least 15 semester hours during this past term, earning an academic average of 3.5 or higher on a 4.0 scale.

The junior student is majoring in Education and will begin her internship in the fall in Lakeland. She is spending her summer working in Lakeland.

Miss Echave graduates

ATLANTA, GA.—A Belle Glade woman earned a bachelor of arts degree June 12 at Emory University graduated 1,571 students during commencement exercises.

Celia Maria Echave, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emilio R. Echave of 209 SE Ave. H in Belle Glade, joined 38,000 alumni living in 50 states and 73 foreign countries.

THE BEAUTIFYING JUDGE received a certificate of appreciation Monday from S.M. McAllister and Jewel Kline of the Belle Glade Beautification Committee. The presentation to County Judge Don Adams was in recognition of his improvement of a building he owns on West Avenue A at South Main Street.

Burger King holds grand opening

It's a family affair as Burger King celebrates its official Grand Opening this Saturday, July 8. The famous fast food restaurant's Clewiston location is 800 West Sugarland Highway.

Burger King's Mike Royal says grand opening festivities will begin at 10 a.m. with an official ribbon cutting. Guests will include Clewiston Mayor Nick Smith and the city commissioners.

Then, from 2 until 5 p.m., the whole family can meet the Burger King. The "King," seen often in TV presentations, travels the United States in a specially built motor home which converts into a stage. In between his three magic shows, he will also talk with youngsters and autograph pictures.

Also during the two day celebration, balloons and special coupons will be given out. Belle Glade radio station WSWN will broadcast live from the Burger King location both days.

The climax of the two-day event will occur at 3 p.m. on Sunday, July 8 with the drawing of prizes in the Grand Opening Sweepstakes. Four 10-speed bicycles will be top prizes. Ten bike radios and 30 bike lights will also be given away. No purchase is necessary to enter and it is not necessary to be present to win. Winners will be announced in next week's edition of the News.

Burger King opened its Clewiston facility four months ago. The restaurant employs approximately 50 people, most of whom are young people in the 16 to 20 year old age group. Managers assisting Mike Royal are Bob Sands, Danny Bozeman, and Jueal Blanco.

The new Clewiston organization has the very latest in decor and design including the new "drive thru" window concept which has done "exceptionally well," Royal commented.

Hours are from 10 a.m. until 11 p.m. daily, seven days a week. Weekends are the busiest, according to Royal.

And, even as Burger King celebrates its Clewiston location, Royal is already looking ahead to the future. "We will be offering most Burger King promotions to our customers," Royal said. "Star War glasses and the Burger King Club will be featured here soon." The Burger King Club, for children 12 and under, will give special premiums for each week with a free premium for the child's birthday. The club will be free.

"We are planning other things for Burger King, too," Royal continued. "Look for longer hours on weekends and for breakfast to be available during the peak fall-winter season. After all, at Burger King, we always think of our customers first. Remember we 'do it your way,'" he smiled.
